Read the sports story.
Then follow the directions in the Text Marking box.

I am a sturdy football, fully covered in leather. But on the inside, I’m all rubber and air, and not so tough at all. A huge bear of a player wearing number 6 has carefully placed me on a tee. So now I find myself balancing on my pointy head as the game begins. Millions of excited fans are watching me on TV. Yes, I am a star. But I’m a scared star because I know what happens next.

Here it comes! Number 6 is coming at me in a menacing way. I’m about to get kicked VERY hard. I shut my eyes tightly and wait for the blow. Ouch! Oooh! I’m suddenly aloft, flying high above the field.

Please catch me, I think as I spin along toward the goal line. Oh, I don’t want to crash onto the grass, where large, muscular men will grab me and fall upon me. But this time I get lucky. Powerful hands catch me in flight. For now, I am safe and sound.

Text Marking

Find the sequence of events in the story.

Box the signal words.

Underline the important events that the football describes.

1-2-3… Number the events in the order they happen.
The Talking Football

Answer each question. Give evidence from the story.

1. Who is telling this story?
   - A. a bear
   - B. a football
   - C. player number 6
   - D. a sports announcer
   What helped you answer?
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________

2. Which might this football say as it lands in the hands of a player?
   - A. “What a relief!”
   - B. “Gee, I wanted to bounce on the ground.”
   - C. “That kick felt fantastic!”
   - D. “It’s great being a TV star.”
   What helped you answer?
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________

3. What about this story makes it funny?
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________

4. Describe the beginning, middle, and end of the story.
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
   ___________________________________________________
Teaching Routine for Close Reading and Purposeful Text Marking

Any text can become more accessible to readers once they have learned to bring various strategies, such as purposeful text marking, to the reading process. Here is one suggested routine that may be effective in your classroom.

Preview

- Engage prior knowledge of the topic of the piece and its genre. Help students link it to similar topics or examples of the genre they may have read.
- Identify the reading skill for which students will be marking the text. Display or distribute the Comprehension Skill Summary Card that applies to the passage. Go over its key ideas. (See Comprehension Skill Summary Card, page 4, for more.)

Model (for the first passage, to familiarize students with the process)

- Display the passage, using an interactive whiteboard, document camera, or other resource, and provide students with their own copy. Preview the text with students by having them read the title and look at the illustration or photograph.
- Draw attention to the markings students will use to enhance their understanding of the piece. Link the text marking box to the Comprehension Skill Summary Card for clarification.
- Read aloud the passage as students follow along. Guide students to think about the skill and to note any questions they may have on sticky-notes.
- Mark the text together. Begin by numbering the paragraphs. Then discuss the choices you make when marking the text, demonstrating and explaining how the various text elements support the skill. Check that students understand how to mark the text using the various icons and graphics shown in the text marking box.

Read

- Have students do a quick-read of the passage independently for the gist. Then they should read it a second time, marking the text as they go.
- Encourage students to make additional markings of their own. These might include noting unfamiliar vocabulary, an idiom or phrase they may not understand, or an especially interesting, unusual, or important detail they want to remember. Model how to use sticky-notes, colored pencils, highlighters, question marks, or check marks.

Respond

- Have students read the passage a third time. This reading should prepare them to discuss the text and offer their views about it.
- Have students answer the questions on the companion Do More page. Encourage them to look back at their text markings and other text evidence. This will help students provide complete and supported responses
Comprehension Skill Summary Card

To help students review the reading-comprehension skill this lesson addresses and the specific terms associated with the skill, have them use the reproducible Comprehension Skill Summary Card (page 6). The boldface terms on the card are the same ones students will identify as they mark the text.

You might duplicate, cut out, and distribute the Comprehension Skill Summary Card before assigning the passage. Discuss the elements of the skill together to ensure that students fully grasp it. Encourage students to save their card, which they can use as a reading aid to refer to whenever they read any type of literary text.

Tips and Suggestions

- The text-marking process is versatile and adaptable. While numbering, boxing, circling, and underlining are the most common methods, you can personalize the strategy for your class if it helps augment the process. You might have students use letters to mark text; they can, for example, write MC to indicate a main character, D to mark a detail, or 1st for first person and 3rd for third person. Whichever technique you use, encourage consistency of marking.
- You may wish to extend the text-marking strategy by having students identify other aspects of writing, such as figurative language or confusing words, expressions, or idioms.

Comprehension Skill: Character

Characters take part in the events of the story. A character can be a person, an animal, or a thing.
- Read for details that describe how each character looks, speaks, acts, and responds to challenges.
- Notice whether and how a character changes or learns during the story.
- A story may have a main character and one or more minor characters.
- The main character is the most important character in the story. This is the character the story is mostly about.
- A minor character is not the focus of the story but is necessary for it to develop.

Comprehension Skill: Point of View

Knowing who is telling a story gives you its point of view. Authors usually use one of two points of view.
- First-person point of view has a character in the story acting as the narrator. In first-person stories, readers learn about events from that character’s point of view.
- Third-person point of view has a narrator—someone outside the story telling it. That person is the narrator. In third-person stories, readers learn the thoughts, actions, and feelings of many characters.

One way to tell a character’s point of view is by what he or she says.

Comprehension Skill: Compare & Contrast

Authors often discuss people, places, things, or ideas by describing how they are alike and ways they differ.
- To compare means to tell how two or more things are alike.
- To contrast means to tell how two or more things are different.
- Signal words give clues that help you compare and contrast.

Examples for comparing: both, too, like, also, and in the same way.
Examples for contrasting: but, only, however, unlike, and different.
Connections to the Standards

This lesson supports the College and Career Readiness Anchor Standards for Reading for students in grades K–12. These broad standards, which serve as the basis of many state standards, were developed to establish rigorous educational expectations with the goal of providing students nationwide with a quality education that prepares them for college and careers. The chart below details how the lesson aligns with specific reading standards for literary texts for students in grade 3.

These materials also address language standards, including skills in the conventions of standard English, knowledge of language, and vocabulary acquisition and use. In addition, students meet writing standards as they answer questions about the passage, demonstrating their ability to convey ideas coherently, clearly, and with support from the text.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reading Standards for Literature</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Key Ideas and Details</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Ask and answer questions to demonstrate understanding of a text, referring explicitly to the text as the basis for the answers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Recount stories, including fables, folktales, and myths from diverse cultures; determine the central message, lesson, or moral and explain how it is conveyed through key details in the text.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Describe characters in a story (e.g., their traits, motivations, or feelings) and explain how their actions contribute to the sequence of events.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Craft and Structure</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Describe the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, distinguishing literal from nonliteral language.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Refer to parts of stories, dramas, and poems when writing or speaking about a text, using terms such as chapter, scene, and stanza; describe how each successive part builds on earlier sections.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Distinguish their own point of view from that of the narrator or those of the characters.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Range of Reading and Level of Text Complexity</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• By the end of the year, read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas, and poetry, at the high end of the grades 2–3 text complexity band independently and proficiently.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Source: © Copyright 2010 National Governors Association Center for Best Practices and Council of Chief State School Officers. All rights reserved.
Sequence of Events

In most stories, events happen in a certain order or sequence. Some events happen in the beginning of the story. Other things happen in the middle. The story finishes with events that happen at the end.

- As you read, think about the sequence of events. This helps you follow the story. Picture the events in your mind to help you remember the sequence.

- Signal words give clues about the sequence of events.

  Examples: before, first, second, next, then, now, later, after, finally, and last, as well as specific dates and times.
Passage: The Talking Football

1. B; Sample answer: The title is “The Talking Football,” and the story is told in first person (I = the football).

2. A; Sample answer: The last part of the story describes the football feeling lucky to be caught by powerful hands.

3. Sample answer: It is funny to imagine a talking football, to read what it might say if it could talk, and to think of a football as a TV star.

4. Sample answer: The story begins with the football telling about itself and where it is. The middle is the football worrying about being kicked and how it will land. The end is when the football is glad it got caught.